The BBYOS Approach:

Working with at-risk youth and families is not easy or quick. Over the years, we've refined our approach in order to reach the people in our community. Outreach in Blake Boulabee is critical in ensuring that disadvantaged youth have the opportunity to get an education, join the workforce and raise a healthy family. BBYOS believes that this requires intensive, multi-disciplinary work with a young person over a period of years. Many social service agencies focus on a particular area of outreach, such as life skills. BBYOS offers a full range of services needed by at-risk youth and families.

Building Relationships:

Our integrated, comprehensive approach involves building relationships with our clients. Foundations of trust allow BBYOS counsellors to address the issues affecting a young person's life, encouraging the development of self-esteem and life skills. BBYOS can provide at-risk youth with: support for survivors of physical, sexual, and emotional abuse; assistance in developing parenting skills; help in finding an apartment or a job; counselling and education about drug and alcohol abuse; and active counselling and education in all areas of sexuality and sexual health. BBYOS does what it takes to give young people a chance to improve their lives - and everyone deserves that chance.

Who We Are:

The Blake Boulton Youth Outreach Service (BBYOS) is a charitable, community-based outreach service established in 1989. BBYOS provides a variety of services to high-risk youth and families in Blake-Boulton, a high-density low-income area of east Toronto. BBYOS is a key agency in the area directly serving the 12-25 year-old children and youth, unique in providing long-term and intensive counselling, therapy and life skills training. BBYOS accepts referrals from social service agencies and schools from across the city, as well as client self-initiated and drop-in contact.

The Goal:

Our goal is to prevent at-risk young people from getting into trouble with the law, abusing alcohol and drugs, and using violence to resolve conflict. We seek to help young people turn their lives around and reach their potential as citizens. We help youth and families to learn about and have healthier interpersonal relationships.

Who Do We Help?

Parents, families and at-risk youth who:

- have been thrown out of school
- are in trouble with the law
- abuse drugs and alcohol
- live in violent domestic circumstances
- have been abused

Fundraising:

Fundraising is a constant part of our staff and Board duties. Our main source of funding is private foundations; we have built up a strong base of support for BBYOS by demonstrating our success in reaching at-risk youth. We have strong individual donor support from the greater community and we work constantly to encourage new foundations and corporations to support BBYOS.
